Understood. I do think there was a lag, perhaps a tiny lag, but a lag of some sort.

I'm a big believer that Gruen wasn't sloppy as they are a watch company, quite organized and meticulous as well. There's purpose and evidently a far reaching decision to use the 826 in the 827 cases since it was done on many models, men's and women's. Just my own opinion that I know differs from other just as valid opinions.

Anyway, my only point is that I think it lagged by some amount, perhaps a teeny tiny amount from the other 2 movements.
