Subject: Crazy Watches Website, A Must See!
Posted by Amadeus Decker on Sat, 17 May 2014 20:36:49 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

So the great Barney Green referred me to an excellent website when I needed information about a Gruen Electronic that I bought off e bay. Once I got to the site I was amazed at how well put together and informative it was.

They cover a wide array of watch genres, many containing legendary Gruen timepieces. Once you get there you will want to look at all the information the guy compiled. A very interesting read, with several icons to push that reveal information about certain designations of watches.

Simply put, ...The guy knows his stuff. And because of Barney's referring me to this great site, my watch was spared damage it could have received if I had not come across little known information about it revealed on this site. The site is Polish, not in language, but in origin. Apparently it is notable as the first Polish site of its kind, and a revolutionary site as far as everybody else is concerned.

The guy makes good on the suggestion of his site having expertise that others may lack. It was true in the case of my Precision Electronic. So I have no problem referring all here, as Barney Green did me to : http://www.crazywatches.pl/home