No. They are seperate companies. But both were established by the same person, Aaron Dennison. His younger brother E.W. Dennison soon was permitted to take over the reins of the box and tag business. Again, never seen anything that suggests Gruen did get watchcases from Dennison. Just playing with possibilities. But I don't think it's too far of a leap to ponder for a sec either, considering the history, how close Dennison family connections and companies were. Dennison Watch Case Co was based out of Birmingham, England. And Dennison has a known major connection to Waltham. So a Gruen connection is highly unlikely.
