Quote:about Android - I know people are missing out - there are a lot of requests (same with my other apps) unfortunately I don't see that happening in near future.

I understand why you priced it this way, dont get me wrong. Time isnt free.

Quote:about subscription - how do those people calculate how much are those features worth? The price per month of one of two coffees is too expensive for watch collectors with broad collections, seriously?.

Since I am not your target group (bc I only collect Gruen watches), I can only make some assumptions.

I would compare it to other apps and take in account how much I would use it. Like Tomtom navigation 22 dollar a year or Spotify 11 dollar monthly. Or the old rannft website (free with ads). Or posting it on a forum for help id-ing.

I could see watchmakers focused on vintage repair pay the subscription because they would use it regularly. The broad collectors you could see as collecting cheap vintage watches from obscure brands. The time spent on research could just be part of the fun/hobby.

Anyway, I hope you will do well with your app.
