Subject: Watch Storage
Posted by MonKee on Fri, 17 Feb 2017 22:24:35 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I am curious as to how people store their watches. I am getting tired of buying the watch boxes. They only hold twenty watches and then you just stack them up. There has to be a innovative solution to this problem. Please show your creative ideas. If plans exist for a large storage cabinet would be very interested in them also.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by JackW on Sat, 18 Feb 2017 06:30:23 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

You have a lot of watches... I'd suggest an armoire.

I just have one of the 20 watch cases with a glass top... holds more than that. Rest are in a soft cloth roll-up. Holds 15. The rest (~10) are on or next to the bench... I've a purge coming up soon.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by Gary on Sat, 18 Feb 2017 17:13:32 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

JackW wrote on Sat, 18 February 2017 06:30I've a purge coming up soon.
Gruen?

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by JackW on Sat, 18 Feb 2017 17:37:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

GaryM wrote on Sat, 18 February 2017 17:13Gruen?
Not so much... I traded some Gruens to Bruce recently... He sold one recently too.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by kastner on Sun, 19 Feb 2017 16:16:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Here's something I posted about three years ago, updated with new pictures

There are a number of nice watch boxes out there but I'm sure that many of you have the same problem I have: way too many watches to fit into a box. Or two. Or three.

I was searching for a solution for a while and at a watch show I saw something very interesting. It was an old embroidery floss holder that had been repurposed into a display for watch bands. This started me thinking about non-standard solutions and after a while I came to an intriguing possibility, namely a map/blueprint cabinet. The drawers in these are wide and long buy only a couple inches tall and should be suitable for holding many watches. Another reason I liked this as a solution is that we have a historic craftsman bungalow house. Turn of the century cabinets were often made of wood and may fit in nicely.

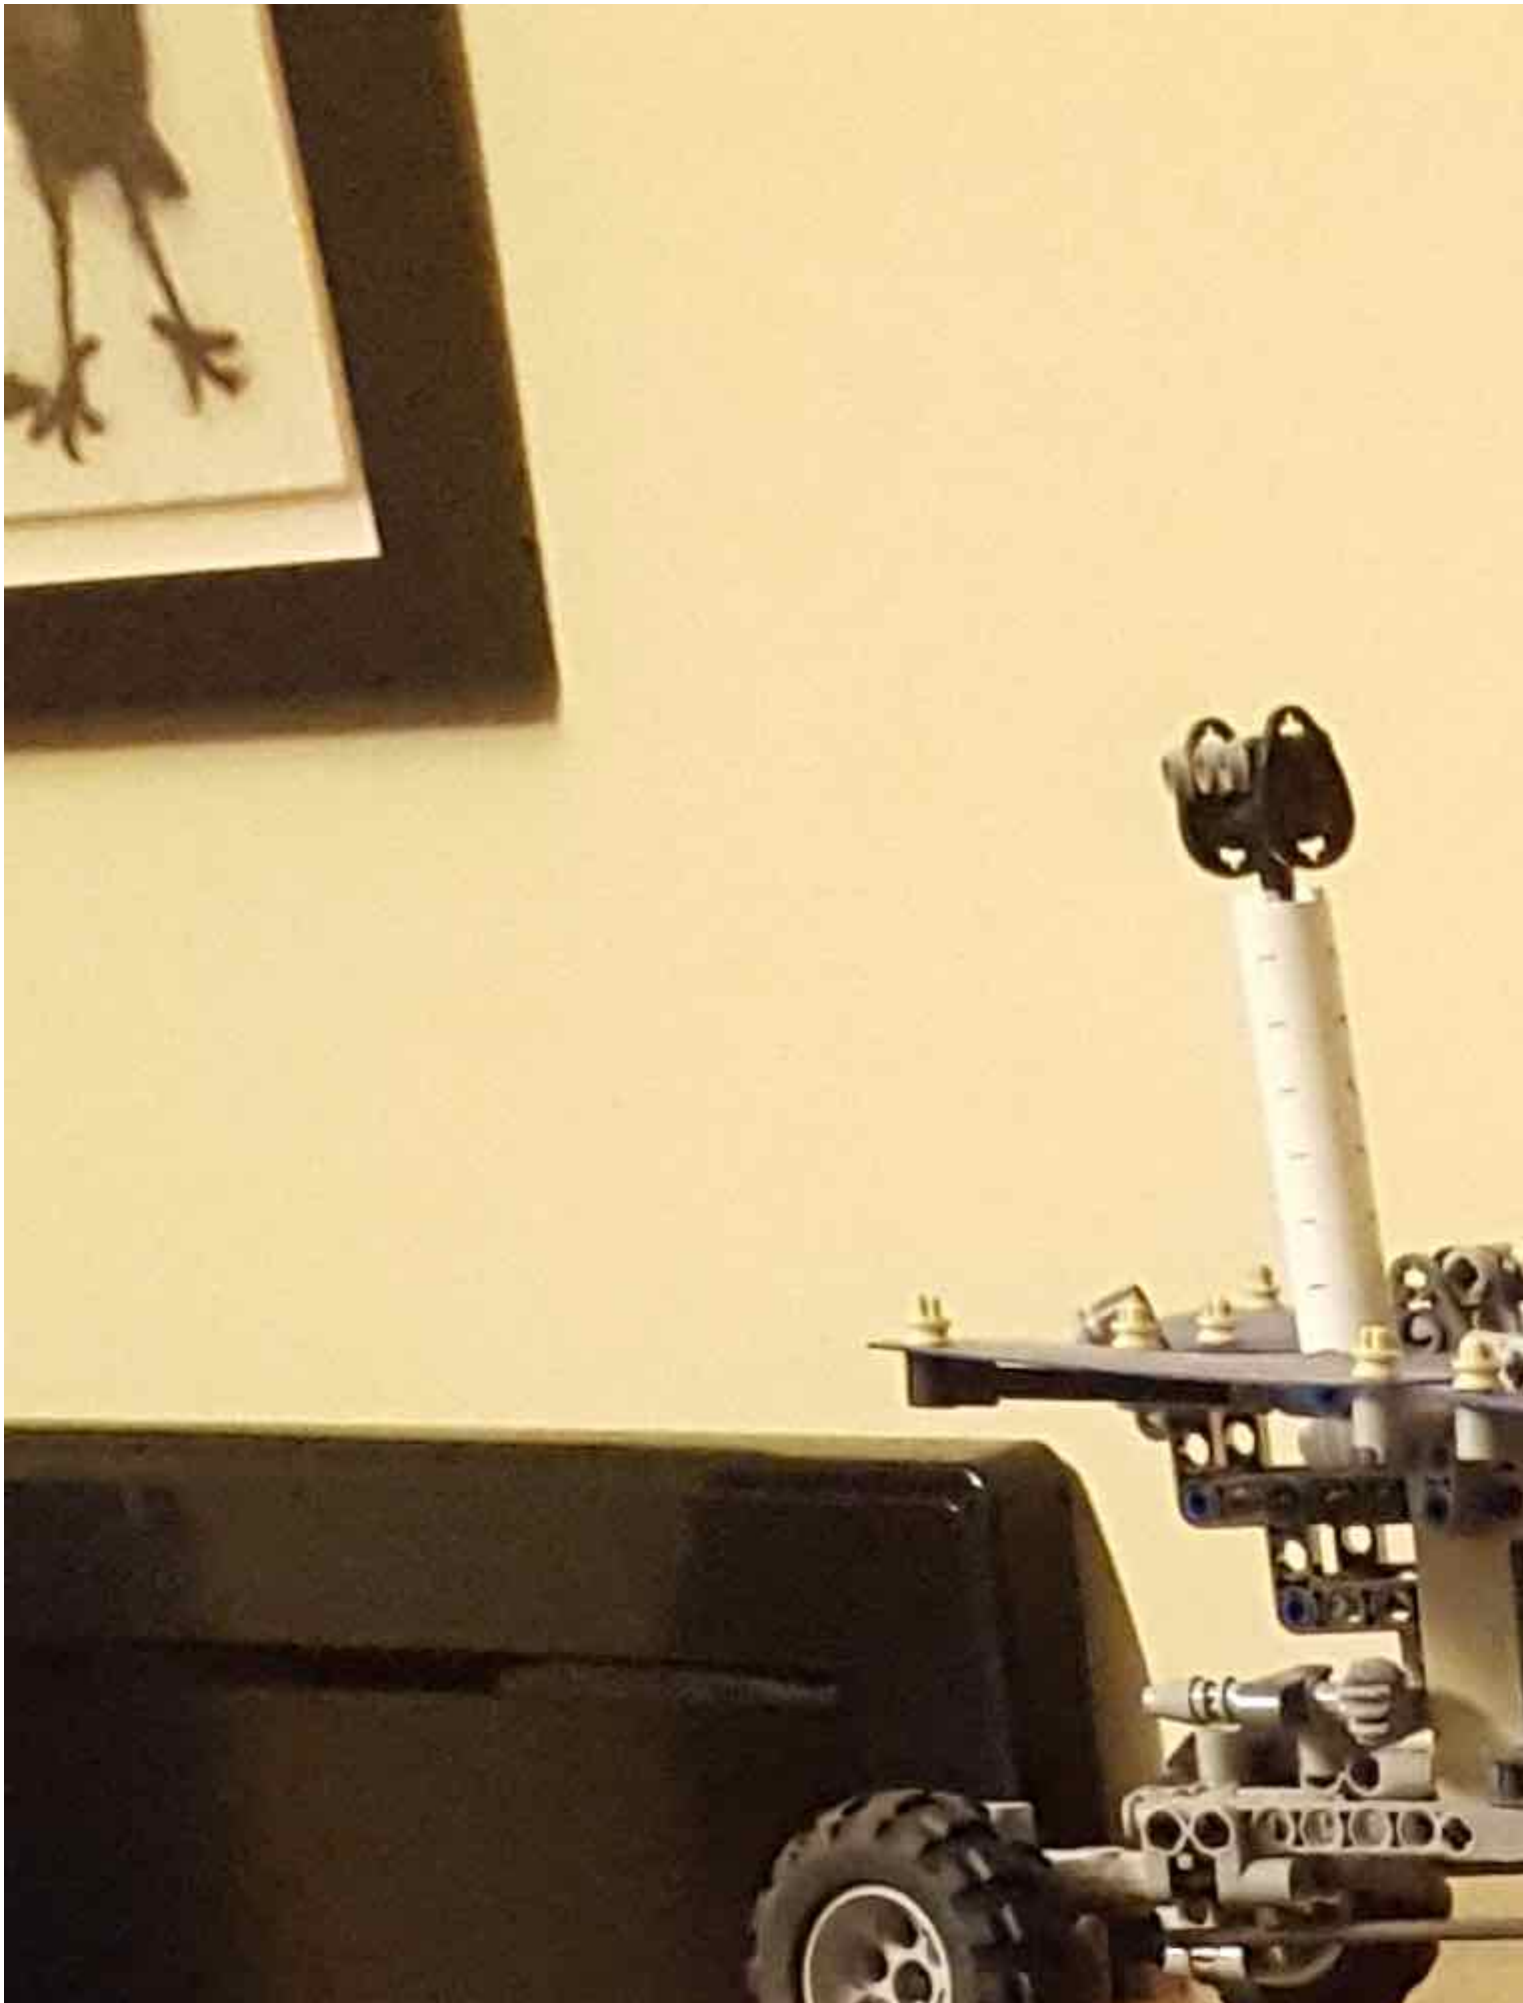

After some searching, I found the right one a combination map/bookcase cabinet with four map drawers. The top two drawers are filled with watches, and the third drawer contains some of my Gruen ephemera. Those with eagle eyes might notice that I've got some misc. Gruen things behind the glass as well.

,

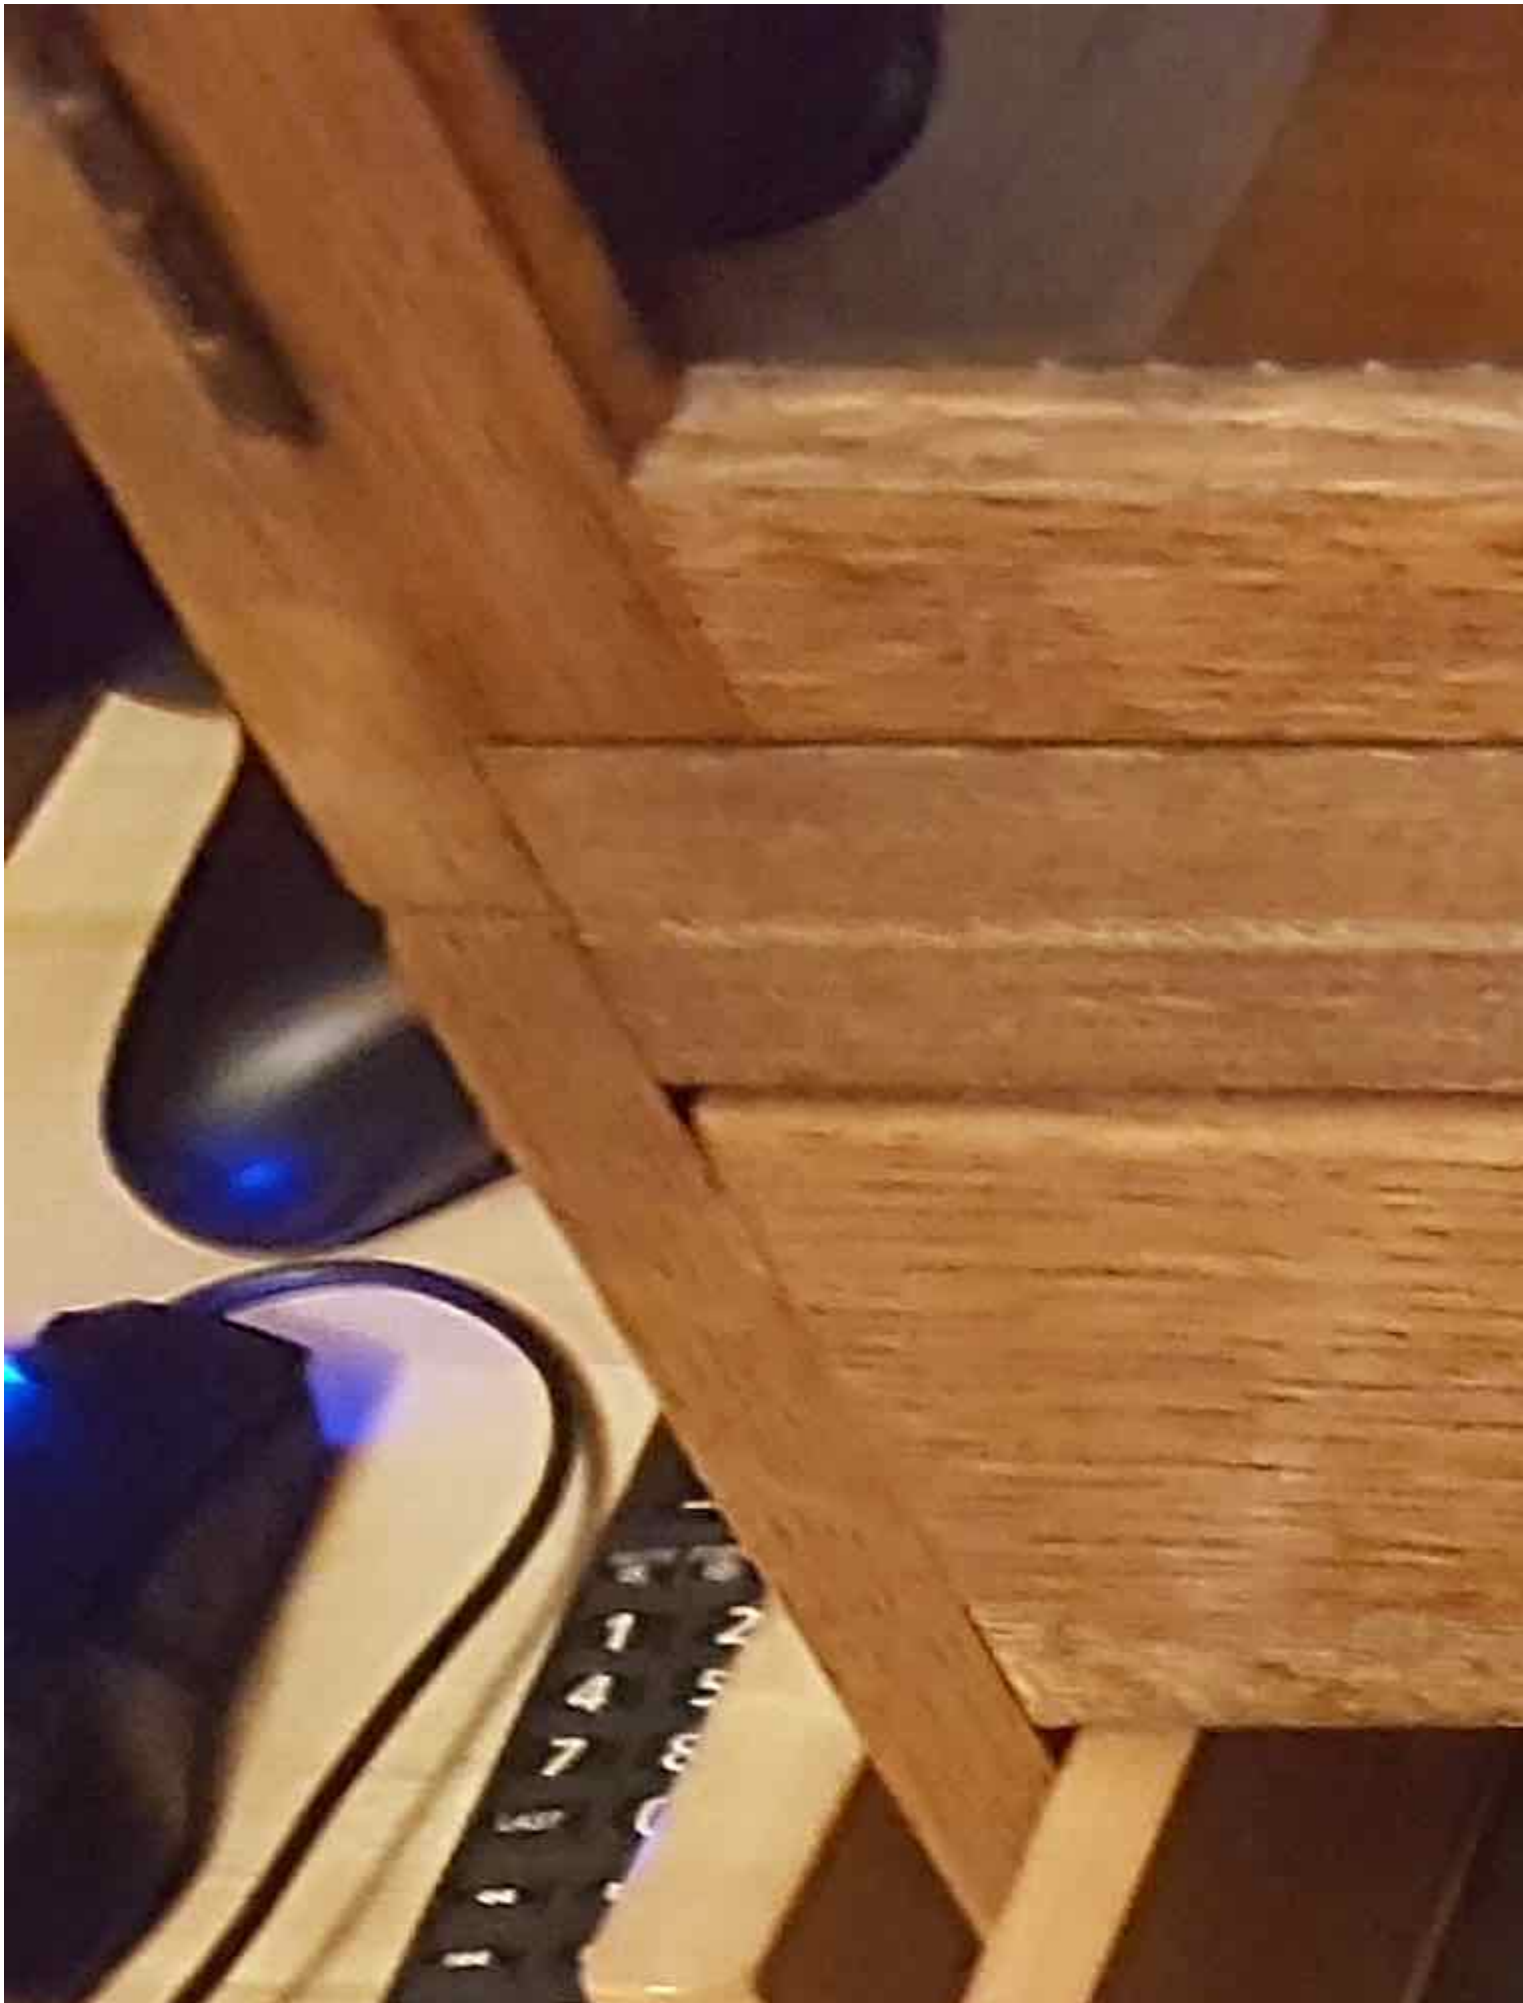

,

File Attachments

1) Bookcase.jpg, downloaded 3679 times

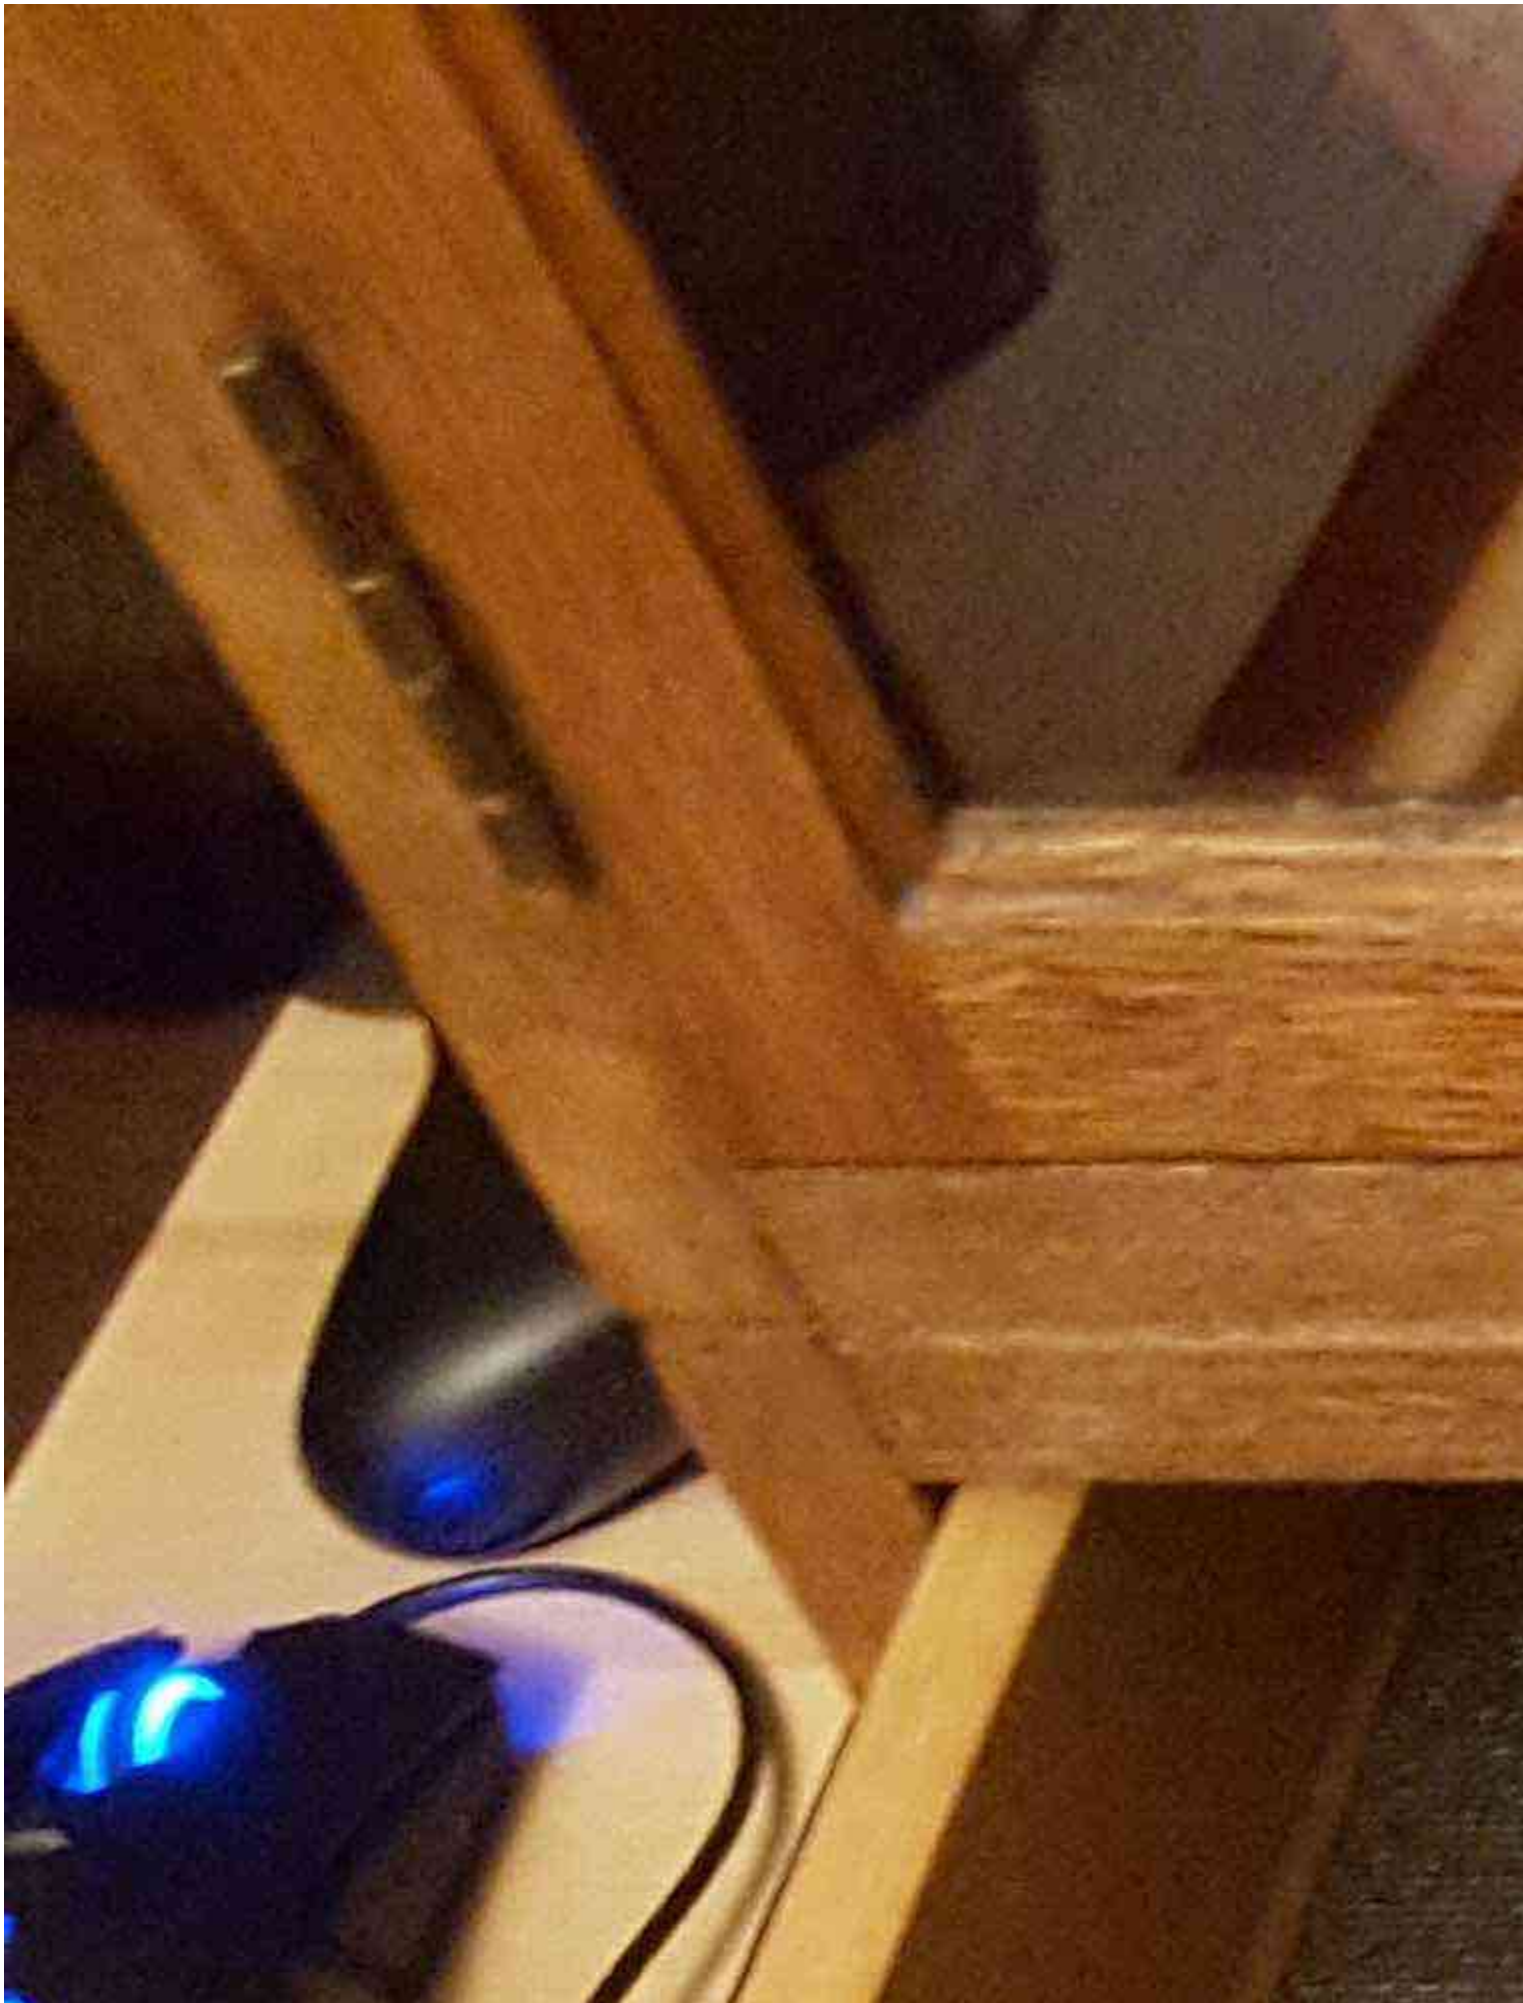

2) Drawer 2.jpg, downloaded 3693 times

3) Drawer 3.jpg, downloaded 3680 times

4) Drawer 1.jpg, downloaded 3754 times

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by Gary on Sun, 19 Feb 2017 17:21:57 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That is a stunning case Jason! I'm torn between something like that, it would look stellar next to my watch bench. I was also thinking of a cabinet safe, something vintage but secure.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by MonKee on Sun, 19 Feb 2017 17:47:48 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Wow, That's really nice Jason. Congratulations on such a nice repurpose. In doing a bit of searching on the Internet I have come across two others I like also. One was an Artist Flat File with some easy to make partitions in the drawers that holds four hundred watches. The second was an antique Spool Cabinet repurposed to hold watches.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by afire on Mon, 20 Feb 2017 17:48:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

kastner wrote on Sun, 19 February 2017 10:16

Ooh, boy. There are a couple trinkets in there that set afire's heart aflutter.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by timeliz on Mon, 20 Feb 2017 19:28:24 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Great looking cabinet & nice collection, Jason!

Hope you are on high ground down there in socal.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by JackW on Mon, 20 Feb 2017 21:32:40 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Jason, there is so much in those photo to be envious over... the tequila, the cabinet, the watches... and should you find yourself in the Denver area, I'll gladly accompany you on a tour of Stranahan's distillery, since I see that hiding in the back.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by kastner on Wed, 22 Feb 2017 14:35:37 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Thanks for the compliments everyone!

Anything you want to see a closeup of afire? If I remember correctly you only like pure metals and in that picture I have 3 silver watches (two cushions and a Techno-quadron), one white gold quadron, one rose gold Pan Am, one yellow gold Pan Am, and a yellow gold curvex.

Much less wet now Liz. Looking at the weather reports I think you got it worse up there.

Good eyes Jack. I don't think I'll be in Denver anytime soon, but I'll keep that in mind.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by afire on Wed, 22 Feb 2017 16:25:27 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

I could handle a closer look at that cut corner 14k Quadron. One turned up on eBay a couple years ago and I didn't make a run at it.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by kastner on Sun, 26 Feb 2017 16:55:08 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Afire, I posted the cut corner quadron in another thread where we were talking about the hammer numbers. you can see it here: http://vintagegruen.org/vgforum/index.php?t=msg&th=1199& amp;amp;goto=7484&#msg_7484

.

Subject: Re: Watch Storage
Posted by afire on Mon, 27 Feb 2017 20:47:44 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

That's a nice looking watch. Barney's too.