Model name: Airway (Universally called "Airflight", which is incorrect for this model). AKA "Super-G"

Type:

Period/date: 1958-1961

Gender: Men's

Case Maker: Unknown

Case Material: Chromed base metal bezel, Stainless Steel back. (also available in gold-plated top/stainless back, solid stainless steel, and solid 14 karat gold)

Case Serial:

Case Style no: N/A

Caliber: 510 RSS CA

Movement Maker: Gruen

Movement Serial:

Bracelet: 17mm strap

Other info: This model was the earliest to incorporate the clever adaptation of the 510 RSS CA movement to allow the 1-12 and 13-24 numerals to "jump" back and forth at 12 hour intervals. This model would stay in production in various forms until at least 1972.

Trivia: The dial is technically incorrect, as the military does not use "2400" hours for midnight, using "zero" hour instead. Ie, 12:30AM would be "Zero-Thiry Hours" in military parlance.

This example shows the American Airlines logo on the dial, one of several corporate tie-ins used in marketing this model.
