Hi Jack! Thanks for the heads up. Indeed. I have trolled a few post in the past. Great forum. I first got interested in Gruen from the Bond movie. Great history and greatly under appreciated as well as Elgin. Cheers!

Hi there,
Is the watch still available?
I am interested and would be pleased to hear from you.
Greetings
Anton

It sounds like it probably sold in October. On a side note, I always find it somewhat amusing that one of the most valuable Gruen models comes from the era past its prime and has almost nothing to do with the the core Gruen heritage.

Suppose the word diver and the black turning bezel has something to do with it. A matter of fashion.

Yep, the diver market is truly its own thing. I guess it's the fact that a single Gruen model would be so desirable in that market is a little perplexing to me. But being a 1920s and 1930s dress watch enthusiast, there's not much reason that I would understand that market.

J'adore la photographie numéro 3, avec au sol
- les tubes néons.
- Les chaussettes fantaisies.
... ;-)

I love picture number 3, with on the ground
- the neon tubes.
- The fancy socks.

It is an interesting juxtaposition, for sure.

Bonjour
Je reconnais que ma remarque est totalement en dehors du sujet. Mais je n'ai pas pu m'en empêcher.
Elle consistait simplement à me rendre un peu moins sérieux, si toutefois, en dehors du travail, je suis sérieux quelques fois... ;-) C'est un de mes défauts, j'aime les choses (toutes les choses, un objet, une action, un service, un plan (je suis dessinateur technique)) bien faites, même une photographie.

J'essayerais de faire attention les prochaines fois.

Hello,
I acknowledge that my comment is completely outside the subject. But I couldn’t help myself.
It was simply about making me a little less serious, if however, outside of work, I am sometimes serious...;-)
It’s one of my flaws, I like things (all things, an object, an action, a service, a plan (I am a technical draftsman)) done well, even a photograph.
I’ll try to be careful next time.

Passion,

There is nothing wrong with your comment. I like the composition too. It is an interesting contrast = interesting juxtaposition.
