

---

Subject: 14K Caliber 355 Stuanton
Posted by slinfiniti on Sun, 16 Mar 2014 17:12:30 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Model name : Stuanton

Type : Type of Quadron

Period/date : 1936-1940

Gender : Male

Case Maker : Katz & Oguish

Case Material : 14 karat yellow gold

Case Serial : 78892

Case Style no : 240

Caliber : 355

Movement Maker : Gruen Watch Company

Movement Serial: 718617

Bracelet : Lizard

I have posted pictures on "another" location. I am discovering that this watch may or perhaps not, be a difficult watch to find. I have tried to find as much information about this model (240) that I can. I have read that the 240 was only made in 14 karat gold. I do not know whether that is accurate. I do know that I have not seen many of this particular model. I have read that it is called a Quadron 139?

I would love to have the experts weigh in on this a peel back the fuzzy layers as to the "know facts' of this model. It is a model that I do not wear much at all. I was thinking of selling it as it sits in my watch box. I am discovering that maybe it is a better idea to hold on to the watch as it might be a limited production model from approximately the late 30's despite the presentation of 1940.

I do appreciate all your help, some on you have been instrumental in building my "Quadron" collection to 15, within that 15 are 5 solid gold Quadron's! I have obtained parts from some of you, I have received valuable information in the restoration process and most of all, to be a part of something that can not be measured. It is common thread of sharing a passion of a sliver of the universe. That sliver is collecting Vintage Gruen Watches from the 1920's to 1930's! Thank all of you for your encouragement, my wife does not share that view, but she likes to wear my pieces occasionally.

How about a little intrigue. According to Mike Barnett and Barry Cooper's Gruen dating chart (an amazing resource for information) the caliber 355 was used for eight different models, yet I have read model 240 was only produced in solid gold. 8 models with the same caliber of movement, in 4 years of production. I am more confused now?

---

File Attachments

1) Photo 1a.JPG, downloaded 2163 times

---

11 12 1

10

GRUEN
PRECISION

2

3

4

5

2

8

2

3) Close Up side.JPG, downloaded 2160 times

4) photo 4.JPG B.JPG, downloaded 2147 times

CASED AND TIMED IN U.S.
BY GRUEN WATCH CO.

14K GOLD

16

73392
355-240

6) Front Case.JPG, downloaded 2198 times

7) Side Profile.JPG, downloaded 2135 times

---

Subject: Re: 14K Caliber 355

Posted by Bazzab on Sun, 16 Mar 2014 18:43:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

According to Bruce Shawkeys Collectors Guide, Gruen produced 23 models, in a 6 year period, 1935-1940, using the 355, or its variance, of which, 13 were cased in 14 karat gold.

B

---

---

Subject: Re: 14K Caliber 355

Posted by MikeTheWatchGuy on Mon, 17 Mar 2014 03:08:21 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

One thing that could be happening in terms of seeing the caliber used with only a handful style numbers is the Style Number Reuse situation. This is where multiple models use the same style numbers. It happens, but it's not extremely common either.

Is 2 models a year for a movement perhaps not that unusual. If you sell a lot of the models then it would make up for the design effort, etc. I still don't have my arms around the entire lifespan and number of units shipped, although I do recall working out how many watches were sold in a year not long ago and already forgot it

"A mind is a terrible thing to waste"

---

---

Subject: Re: 14K Caliber 355

Posted by afire on Thu, 20 Mar 2014 16:17:46 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

FYI, we now have a name for it. In 1938 Christmas pamphlet Thojil just posted, it's identified as the Stuanton.

---

---

Subject: Re: 14K Caliber 355

Posted by Bazzab on Sat, 22 Mar 2014 21:33:34 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

Pleased we could help with the ad copy!!!

B

---